ANALYSIS

FEDERAL/STATE LAW

Existing federal and state laws provide various tax credits designed to provide tax relief for taxpayers who incur certain expenses (e.g., child adoption) or to influence behavior, including business practices and decisions (e.g., research credits or economic development area hiring credits). These credits generally are designed to provide incentives for taxpayers to perform various actions or activities that they may not otherwise undertake.

Existing federal law provides a tax credit called the Lifetime Learning Credit of up to $2,000 for qualified education expenses. Qualified education expenses include tuition and certain related expenses required for enrollment in a course at an eligible educational institution. The course must either be part of a postsecondary degree program or taken by the student to acquire or improve job skills. For taxable year 2009, the tax credit is phased out if the adjusted gross income (AGI)¹ is between $50,000 and $60,000 ($100,000 and $120,000 for taxpayers filing a joint return). The Lifetime Learning Credit cannot be claimed if the AGI is $60,000 or more ($120,000 or more for joint filers).²

Current state law does not provide a comparable credit.

THIS BILL

This bill would provide a tax credit in an amount equal to 50 percent of the costs paid or incurred by a taxpayer for education and training.

This bill defines “education and training” as both of the following:

- Education or training provided to the taxpayer’s employees to maintain or improve a skill required for the taxpayer’s trade or business, and
- Education and training provided to the taxpayer in order to comply with the express requirements imposed by the taxpayer’s employer or by laws or regulations as a condition of the taxpayer’s retention of an established employment relationships, status, or rate of compensation.

Under this bill, unused credits can be carried over into future years until exhausted.

This bill would disallow a deduction for the amount of qualified expenses for which this credit is allowed for business related training or education.

² Internal Revenue Code (IRC) 25A, Lifetime Learning Credit.

IMPLEMENTATION CONSIDERATIONS

The department has identified the following implementation concerns. Department staff is available to work with the author's office to resolve these and other concerns that may be identified.

This bill uses terms or phrases that are undefined including "employee," "skills required," "established employment relationship," "status," and "qualified expenses." The absence of definitions to clarify these terms or phrases could lead to disputes with taxpayers and would complicate the administration of this credit.

This bill would provide a credit for taxpayers who pay or incur costs to educate and train their employees. It is unclear in the bill, who would certify whether the employees have met the education and training requirements. Typically, credits involving areas for which the department lacks expertise are certified by another agency or agencies that possess the relevant expertise. The certification language would specify the responsibilities of both the certifying agency and the taxpayer.

It is unclear what types of employees qualify the taxpayer for the credit. Without clarification, it could be broadly interpreted to include all job classifications. In addition, the author should consider whether transportation or child care costs are included in the costs for education and training.

TECHNICAL CONSIDERATIONS

This bill uses the same definition of "education and training" in the Corporate Tax Law as in the Personal Income Tax Law. The use of this definition assumes corporations are employees. To ease administration of this bill and prevent confusion with taxpayers, it is recommended on page 2, strikeout line 31, on page 2, line 32 strikeout "(1)" and on page 2, strikeout lines 35-39.

OTHER STATES' INFORMATION

Florida, Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, and New York laws do not provide a credit comparable to the credit allowed by this bill. The laws of these states were reviewed because their tax laws are similar to California's income tax laws.

FISCAL IMPACT

This bill would require a calculation for the credit that would require a new form or worksheet to be developed. As a result, this bill would impact the department's printing, processing, and storage costs for tax returns, instructions, and publications. These changes could be incorporated into the department's annual changes, and as such, the costs would be minor.

ECONOMIC IMPACT

Revenue Estimate

This bill would result in the following revenue losses:

Estimated Revenue Impact of SB 985 Operative for Tax Years Beginning On or After January 1, 2010 Enactment Assumed by September 30, 2010 ($ in Millions)
2010-11	2011-12	2012-13
-$260	-$230	-$240

This analysis does not account for changes in employment, personal income, or gross state product that could result from this bill.

POLICY CONCERNS

Generally, credits are capped with a percentage and a dollar amount; without the dollar limitation, the revenue loss associated with this bill could be significant, as indicated in the preceding Economic Impact discussion. It is suggested that if the author would like to limit the loss, that the credit be capped at the lesser of 50 percent of the costs or a specific dollar amount.

This bill does not restrict the credit to employees who are employed within California (and are thus themselves subject to California tax on their earnings).

This bill lacks a sunset date. Sunset dates generally are provided to allow periodic review of the effectiveness of the credit by the Legislature.

This bill would allow for an unlimited carryover period. Consequently, the department would be required to retain the carryover on the tax forms indefinitely. Recent credits have been enacted with a carryover period limitation because experience shows credits typically are exhausted within eight years of being earned.
